

Overall, are you in a positive or negative space?

Is there a specific relationship where you are in a negative space?

How do you tend to respond to unmet expectations? (For example, one may move to a negative space, not speaking with the person but complaining about the issue to others.)

Do you know how to move to a positive space once you get into a negative space?